Press release

KINGSTONE and ADVENTRA establish institutional infrastructure investment platform

- Focus on resilient infrastructure in energy and heat supply and storage, mobility, digitalisation, defence and civil protection
- Managing Directors: Karsten Mieth, Friedrich von Carlowitz and Maximilian Radert
- New company will offer infrastructure investments through a range of structures

Munich, 20 August 2026 – KINGSTONE Investment Management (KINGSTONE IM) is expanding into the infrastructure asset class with the establishment of KINGSTONE Infrastructure Investments (KII). The new company is a joint venture between KINGSTONE IM and ADVENTRA Asset Management GmbH. ADVENTRA specialises in institutional investments in infrastructure and real assets, with particular expertise in energy, storage, security of supply and resilient infrastructure. The partners intend to launch and manage a range of infrastructure investment vehicles. KII's Managing Directors are Friedrich von Carlowitz, Karsten Mieth and Maximilian Radert.

Resilience will serve as the overarching principle guiding KII's infrastructure investments. The company will focus on investments that strengthen the resilience and stability of the economy, the state and society. This encompasses energy and supply sovereignty, mobility and supply chains, digital infrastructure and data resilience, as well as security- and defence-related infrastructure. Investment activity will focus primarily on Germany, complemented by investments in Poland and the Netherlands, where the partners already have an established local presence.

Dr Tim Schomberg, CEO and founder of KINGSTONE IM, comments: "Alongside real estate, infrastructure is becoming an increasingly important asset class for many institutional investors. We are responding to this shift and believe that it presents significant opportunities for our firm. Establishing a dedicated infrastructure business is therefore the logical next step for KINGSTONE."

Philipp Schomberg, Executive Partner and founder of KINGSTONE IM, adds: "Our ambition is to build a long-term infrastructure platform with a clear focus on resilience-related investments and investment solutions. With Karsten Mieth, Friedrich von Carlowitz and Maximilian Radert, we have brought together a management team with extensive experience in this field."

Karsten Mieth, founder and Managing Partner of ADVENTRA, sees significant opportunities for investors: “Germany and Europe face enormous challenges in delivering future-proof infrastructure and strengthening the resilience of their economies. Systemically important projects are becoming increasingly interconnected and complex and require private capital alongside public funding. Crucially, the framework conditions for institutional investors have also improved: professional valuation practices and a clear regulatory framework are bringing this asset class into sharper focus.”

Karsten Mieth has more than 30 years’ experience in the highly regulated field of fund management, with a particular focus on infrastructure investments and real assets. Most recently, he served as spokesperson for the Management Board of the Encavis Group, with responsibility for institutional asset management. Encavis, formerly a publicly listed company and a constituent of the MDAX, operates photovoltaic power plants and onshore wind farms across Europe.

Friedrich von Carlowitz has served as Managing Director of KINGSTONE Capital Advisory for approximately two years and brings extensive infrastructure experience gained during his time at Macquarie.

Maximilian Radert has many years of experience in developing domestic and international fund vehicles, analysing complex infrastructure markets, and structuring capital-market-ready solutions for institutional investors.
